CONF 623
LABORATORY AND SIMULATION II:
COMMUNITY AND ORGANIZATIONAL CONFLICT

Semester: Spring 1996
Class Time: Wednesday 7:20-10:00 pm
Instructor: Profs. Wallace Warfield and Frank Blechman

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This is the second in a building block of courses designed to familiarize students with different levels of conflict and forms of intervention through participation in labs and simulations. Community conflict, and conflict that takes place within and between organizations that are a part of communities, is widespread in society. For the purpose of this course, we will concentrate on community level conflict where issues of social justice, distribution of resources, and tensions between dominant and subordinate interest groups and between subordinate interest groups are factors.

We note that conflict at the community level is complex, involving multiple actors playing multiple roles. As such, the course builds on skills learned in 613 and seeks to develop awareness of skills necessary for intervention in conflicts at the community level, among them:

- Conflict Assessment
- Facilitation
- Getting to the Table
- Intervention Design and Strategy
- Intervention Process Skills
- Communication Skills
- Understanding Parties' Positions, Interests, Values and the Role of Human Needs
- The Impact of Race, Ethnicity, Gender, and Other Distinctive Cultural Characteristics at this Level of Conflict
- The Role of Power
- Framing, Implementing and Sustaining Agreements
COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Evaluation for purposes of grading will be based on performance in three areas:

1. FULL AND ACTIVE PARTICIPATION IN CLASS DISCUSSION AND SIMULATIONS

   Class participation (5%). Appropriate application of skills for intervention in this level of conflict, demonstrated to the instructional team (30%).

2. TEAM PRESENTATIONS ON READINGS

   Four to five member student teams will make a presentation to the class on some aspect of the readings, class discussion, or other materials related to the course. Teams will be designated by the second class and it will be determined in advance what day their presentation will be made (30%).

3. FINAL PAPER

   A paper no longer than 15-18 double-spaced pages in length that can be based on the observation of a protest demonstration or some ongoing conflict. Students choosing this option should:

   - Describe and analyze the goals and grievances of the protesting group;

   - Propose and justify a strategy for bringing the protesting party(ies) "to the table" for resolution;

   - Discuss your personal reactions to the experience and the approaches used (and difficulties encountered) in conducting this research.

   OR

   A paper of the same length that details a joint problem solving approach to a community conflict or an organizations conflict that has impact on a definable community, that you have read about or are aware of, but will not be able to directly observe.
For either choice, a two-page proposal should be prepared, describing the approach you intend to take for the paper. For the participant observation option, include a description of the subject/demonstration (with date if possible) for your research, guidelines you intend to use for observation and sample questions for interviews. Which-ever option students choose, the paper should be adequately cited to readings, class discussion, and other sources. Please use a consistent style of citation (35%).
